MUHAMMAD, ADAM, YA'JUJ AND CHILD BRIDES

by Gary

NOTE

I wanted to edit and correct the article because I'm banned from the website. Today, I posted a comment on the website. I'm not sure if it will be approved. I'm banned because I'm a Christian. I'm a Christian because I'm a Muslim. I'm a Muslim

"Protestant Christian" versus "Evangelical Christianity"

Charles Scott Jones also wrote for Peter C. Wagner, in the Foreign perspectives of Christianity Today, a comparative analysis of Evangelicals versus Protestants. Jones's analysis is based on the following assumptions:

> Protestants place an intellectual stress on the revealed word of God and Evangelicals place a moral stress on the revealed word of God. Protestants are more liberal in their cultural outlook than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their social and economic ethic than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their theological outlook than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their ecclesiastical outlook than are Evangelicals. Protestants emphasize education, Evangelicals emphasize evangelism. Protestants are more ecumenical than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of the Bible than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of sin than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of salvation than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of eternal punishment than are Evangelicals.

Protestants place an intellectual stress on the revealed word of God and Evangelicals place a moral stress on the revealed word of God. Protestants are more liberal in their cultural outlook than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their social and economic ethic than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their theological outlook than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their ecclesiastical outlook than are Evangelicals. Protestants emphasize education, Evangelicals emphasize evangelism. Protestants are more ecumenical than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of the Bible than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of sin than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of salvation than are Evangelicals. Protestants are more liberal in their interpretation of eternal punishment than are Evangelicals.

APPENDIX B: ISRAELI ACTIVISTS

A quick review of Israeli, the anti-zionist and defending Mohammed's belief, shows that the Israeli activists are Muslim Jews and Christians.

1) Who are Mohammed's allies? Jews of Mohammed's daily prayer.

From Bulletin 1:24:

Hashem Jews:

"Hashem Jews" are those who believe that Hashem is a name of Allah and that Mohammed was a true prophet and that the Koran is the Word of Allah. Hashem Jews are those who believe